VOL. VI.....NO. 1380. NEW-YORK, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1856. PRICE, TWO CENTS.

[illegible] of one of your [illegible] in a paper which portrays the immense [illegible] of your commercial prosperity, and exhibits with [illegible] power the vital importance of the maintenance of those principles which have contributed to the marvellous prosperity and commercial interests, or [illegible] of our country. I would take the occasion to commend this masterly exposition of American commerce and American Union to the thoughtful attention of every man in any way interested in the future welfare. It is enough for us to know that we have a nation which comprises a sea-board diversity of soil, climate and production—that this diversity compels an interchange of commodities on a vast scale, and that those creates that commerce which is the source of your prosperity and strength. Need we complain because New-England employs her industry in manufacturing, or because the South seeks her prosperity in agriculture, while New-York, with her merchants and vessels, [illegible] the office of factor and carrier? [Voices—No, no.] Let us respect Nature's laws and thank the great Architect of nations that our is a colossal Empire extending from ocean to ocean, and from the frozen waters of the lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. You must not infer from this allusion to the commercial aspects of the present crisis that I intend to [illegible] political and commercial interests, or [illegible] of those higher considerations which [illegible] the permanence of American liberty and the cause of free representative government. While I deem it legitimate and reasonable to counsel the people to guard their prosperity by prudent political action, I would invoke them by the more exalted sentiments of patriotism to maintain the institutions and cherish the fraternal ties which make us one united people. The most sacred recollections, the most glorious hopes plead with us continually to remain faithful to the spirit of that national system which has secured from the patriots of '76 and '89. [Cheers.]

We are in the midst of a contest which involves momentous consequences. It is a crisis big with the fate of nations. [Cheers.] We must, and all other considerations remote and remotest, [illegible] the great and paramount question whether it is advisable for the sixteen Northern States to combine their strength and take possession of the Executive Government of the United States, without the concurrence or participation of any considerable number of the people of the fifteen States of the South. [Sensation.] In other words, shall the people of the Free States form themselves in compact array and elect a President, on a question which in the nature of things divides the country into two different sections? [Thundering cries of "No!"] Compared with this all other issues become subordinate and insignificant. [Cheers.]

I desire to render full justice to those of our fellow-citizens who have engaged in this Northern combination. I am well aware that it includes many men heretofore conservative, and that they are generally influenced by excited feelings, under a deep sense of wrong. They have been persuaded that the election of a President by the North alone is the only effectual remedy for the grievances in Kansas. I conclude that they are honest and patriotic and that a large majority of them purpose to disband the organization when the particular object is attained. [Sensation.] But I believe they have not sufficiently considered the practical effects of their action, and that the results may prove widely different from the intentions which govern them. My observations on this occasion relate chiefly to the nature and probable consequences of an election of the President by one section over the other. Is such an election in harmony with the spirit of a federal compact between distinct and independent States? [Voices—"No."] Would it be favorable to the public tranquillity and prosperity, and to the continuance of our Union? [Voices—"No."] Would it afford any remedy for wrong doings in Kansas, or wrong doings anywhere? [Strong cries of "No."] Before answering these questions, let us consider for a moment a preliminary point that is constantly interposed to our objections. We are assured that the Republican Party is not sectional in its character. [Cries of "Yes it is."] Now it is easy to differ respecting the precise meaning of words, but there is not much room for dispute as to the practical nature and tendency of a party founded upon the Slavery question alone, proposing nothing in regard to other matters of government, and existing only in the Northern section of the Union. Its operations and efforts are limited by the line between the Free and the Slave States, and it arrays the former in a direct trial of strength against the latter. [Voices—"That's true."]

It divides the country in twain—sixteen States on this side, fifteen on the other; for the small show of support in two or three Slave States deserves no more attention than any exception to general propositions.

If a party thus formed is not sectional in its character, permit me to inquire what additional fact is necessary to constitute a geographical party? (Voices, "Nothing!") How could it be made more geographical in its effect and operation? When nations are at war, the diplomatists on both sides have learned to insist that they contend only for right and justice, and that they indulge no feelings of hostility. But the fact of war remains until mutual exhaustion compels a treaty of peace. According to my view of the subject, any party which exists only in the North or in the South, and marshals the people of one against the other, whatever name it may assume, is a geographical party, such as WASHINGTON foresaw and deprecated in his Farewell Address. It is fraught with the dangers which excited his fears for the stability of the Government, and prompted his last solemn admonitions. We are informed that the Republican Party has modified its platform with a view to weaken the force of our objections. We must remember that this Party was organized in New-York in 1854, and its purposes were declared in the proceedings of its Convention, held first at Saratoga and subsequently at Auburn. It promulgated various propositions on the subject of Slavery—denouncing the Compromises of 1850—declaring that no more Slave States shall be admitted, and proposing a Convention of Free States to nominate a President. These avowals have been modified, so that the whole scheme may be summed up in a single article which relates to the government of Kansas, and omits the government of the country. (Laughter and applause.)

But the character of a party is not conclusively established by omissions, ambiguities, and artful phraseology in the structure of resolutions. [Cheers.] They are of about as much value as the technical pleadings of counsel; we must look to other sources for the state of the cause. [Cries of "That's so."] It was but solemn trifling to invite the slave States to come in, when it was perfectly notorious that no electoral vote is expected from any of them. To learn the spirit and scope and purpose of a party organization, we must pay some attention to its avowals through the press and in the arena of discussion. Judged by this criterion, the party is about the same now as in 1854, '55. Some good citizens of a conservative stamp have joined it, intending to retreat when the troubles are over in Kansas. But the real object is to elect a President by the united vote of the Northern States. To secure this conquest, its presses and orators pour forth a never-ending stream of vituperation upon the whole South—words of reproach and defiance, intended to excite in each section irreconcilable hatred towards the other—arraigning the slave States as barbarous, and the whole body of slave-holders as criminal, and sometimes inculcating the sentiment that our Union with them is alike unprofitable and disgraceful. [Applause.] To increase the feeling of aversion, geographical maps of the United States are scattered abroad, exhibiting the Northern States arrayed in innocence, while the Southern States are covered beneath impenetrable darkness, like the regions of perpetual night. [Cries of "Shame!"] Maryland, Kentucky, and the whole South are held up to derision, and the soil which contains the ashes of WASHINGTON, and MADISON, and CARROLL, and CLAY—(enthusiastic cheering)—is represented to the world as a heathen land. [Applause.] To excite the popular apprehension a dim cloud is spread over the free State of California and the free Territories of Minnesota, Nebraska, Oregon and Washington, running north to the frozen parallel of 49°. Opposed now and forever to the extension of Slavery, I cannot forget that the country of LEE and PINKNEY and FARRIS HENRY is part of my country, [great cheering,] nor that these geographical appeals are calculated if not intended to blacken the portion of the American Union in the sight of the nations. [Great applause.]

Let us return to the inquiry whether the election of a President by the Northern States alone is advisable. Consider for a moment [illegible] of the Constitution [illegible] cord and community of feeling between the States [illegible] purposes [illegible] the advices of jealousies, heartburnings, and animosities, which are sure to arise [illegible] among adjoining States when [illegible] by no federal ties. This grand design of the compact of union is subverted, in a considerable degree, by dividing the North and South into contending sections in the Presidential contest. We need not assume that the success of a Northern party would abruptly terminate the political connection between the two classes of states. I persuade myself that there is enough of moderation, wisdom, and loyalty to the Constitution, even in the Southern States, to avert such a catastrophe. [Cheers.] But a great stride will have been made towards moral division whenever the strength, sectional triumphs over the weaker. Union implies friendship, mutual faith, and confidence of all for the common advantage. Will these remain, when the whole people of nearly half the States shall feel that they have been virtually subjugated in the choice of the Federal Executive? [Cries of "No!"] Your own knowledge of our common nature will answer this question. [illegible] would not, regard the [illegible] originated with a Northern Senator, but favored by a Southern President, and received the votes of nearly half of the Northern Senators and two-thirds of those. [Cries of "That's so," and applause.] It was the work of a political party. Let the responsibility rest where it belongs. It was not called for by the people of the South, and we all know that a large portion of her citizens condemned it from the beginning. [Cheers.] Will the success of a Northern party cure the mischief? [Cries of "No, no."] Instead of allaying any severity, I fearly believe that such an event would aggravate the existing disorders, and produce other evils of a still more serious magnitude. It would be as great a triumph for disunionists in the South as for agitators in the North. [Cheers.] Heretofore the President has been chosen by a party extending over the whole country, irrespective of sectional lines. The result has been received by all parties with ready acquiescence. [Applause.] The Chief Magistrate was chosen by a body of friends and supporters, [illegible] to entrust the administration. But suppose a President should be elected by a party composed of Northern States only, and the South should be overborne by a majority to whom she refuses to confer the administration. Would not such a result be calculated to excite the gravest apprehensions? Would not the minority be overpowered by the superior strength of the North? [Cheers.] A very large portion of the Southern people would receive it as an act of aggression, intended to reduce them to a permanent subjection. Two parties would arise in most of the slaveholding States—a party for the Union and a party for disunion.

Those of the friends of the Union would ultimately prevail, I never permit myself to doubt. [Warm applause.] But in some States they would be overborne for a season by the violence of popular excitement. They would be clamored by disunionists as traitors to their own section, in the same spirit that the advocates of moderation are sometimes assailed by the extremists in the North. Is it well to subject patriots and loyal men in the South to such an ordeal? [Voices—"No," "no."] Let us pause before we precipitate the country into scenes of violence and distraction, from which the heart of the patriot recoils. We desire domestic tranquillity. [Cheers.] The election of a President by a sectional vote, instead of restoring peace and harmony to the country, could scarcely fail to engender four years of strife and discord, unprecedented in our past history. [Applause.] Under such a state of things the federal laws would be executed with great difficulty in some of the States, and the nation's purposes, in all things depending upon harmony and tranquil legislation, would be virtually arrested. In my judgment the cause of Freedom has nothing to expect or to hope from such a state of affairs. It will not bring liberty or amelioration to any slave anywhere. [Cheers.] Many good men consider it the best mode for securing freedom in Kansas. But I suspect the practical effect would be precisely the reverse. The more bold and impetuous of the Southern people, smarting under the sense of degradation, would probably strive to possess Kansas, and hold it at all hazards. There are triumphs which prove no less disastrous to the victor than the vanquished, and this would be one of them. If the people of the South are already so unreasonable that we cannot act with them in the choice of a President, it is too much to hope that they will all behave like philosophers after they are voted down. It is easy and natural to say that an unwillingness by a section to yield to the compact strength of the other is unreasonable and disloyal. Admit it to be so, but the fact still remains, and it is the business of those who conduct the course of Governments to give some heed to the real temper and sentiments of large masses of people. The spirit of insubordination, which has proved so fatal to the South American Republics, originates in the madness of passion, overleaping the bounds of reason, and operating in defiance of interest and duty. But the effects are none the less melancholy and disastrous. A wise Republic will carefully abstain from all experiments calculated to alienate large portions of the country from the supreme authority. I am well aware that this practical view of consequences is not in harmony with the excited feelings which agitate the popular breast.

But in great emergencies, no less than in the common concerns of life, it is the part of wisdom to exercise a calm and sober judgment. It was the wisest of philosophers who abstained from striking while he was angry. [Warm applause.] In the discharge of our high political responsibilities, it becomes us to consult the dictates of reason, rather than yield to the force of excited passions. [Cheers.] We are not at liberty to close our eyes to the realities before us. The administration of a government is eminently a practical concern, and every elector ought to feel his just share of the responsibility.

In this connection permit me to remind you that ours is the strongest section, and the South has not the power over us. [Cheers.] The North holds large and increasing preponderance in population; a majority of Senators and Representatives. [Applause.] Whatever may be said of the extension of Slavery, Freedom, by its inherent power and vitality, extends itself much more rapidly. In truth there has been no extension of Slavery since the annexation of Texas, unless in the sequel Kansas shall prove an exception, which I still hope and trust may be prevented. [Warm applause.] I do not suppose any rational man labors under serious apprehensions that Slavery can obtain a foothold in any other of our present territories. [Cheers.] This view of the ground is more encouraging to the true friends of freedom, than would be inferred from the exaggerated pictures which are held up to excite our fears and dampen our hopes. [Applause.]

You will naturally inquire if there is no remedy for the present distracted condition of the country. That evils exist which require a remedy is universally conceded. Pernicious legislation; a feeble executive; civil strife upon our borders, resulting from the reckless repeal of the Missouri Compromise; a spirit of discord howling over the land, North against South and South against North;—present a series of calamities which may well excite our anxious solicitude. We are bound to adopt the course which commends itself to our intelligence and patriotism, as best adapted to rectify these disorders and rescue the country from its dangers. [Applause.] You have seen that according to my view of the subject a sectional triumph would operate not as a remedy, but rather as a new and prolific source of strife, agitation and misgovernment. Waiving all discussion in regard to the merits and qualifications of Col. FREMONT, I will only say that in my opinion neither he nor any man living can advance his own honor or the welfare of his country by being elevated to the executive chair through the efforts of a geographical combination. [Great and enthusiastic applause and cheering.]

Nor do I believe that the election of Mr. BUCHANAN would bring repose and harmony to the country. As an able and experienced statesman, I have long regarded him with respect—but he comes before us as the representative of an Administration which is mainly responsible for the present troubles. He is identified with an embittering aggressive system of foreign policy which I deem very unpromising for the peace of the Country, or for that stability in national affairs so essential to the public prosperity. Although [illegible] party which has some strength in every section, his election would be received as a Southern sectional triumph, and would only prolong the existing disturbance.

What then is to be done? What alternative remains? After serious and impartial reflection, having surveyed the whole ground with an earnest desire to discern the path of duty and safety, it appears to me that all who desire a return to just and rational counsels in our federal affairs, ought to give their support to Mr. FILLMORE. [Tremendous enthusiasm and cheering, nine cheers for Mr. FILLMORE, three for Gov. HUNT, and great applause.] In the present state of things, I consider him the best representative of that national conservative feeling, which would reconcile differences and restore peace by inaugurating a policy of impartial justice between both sections. [Cheers.] I consider it greatly in his favor that he is opposed by those extremists North and South who seem resolved that the country shall have no rest from their clamors, so long as one part of the Union is in the North and the other in the South. [Cheers.]

Mr. FILLMORE has rendered valuable service to his country both in the Legislative and Executive branches of the Government. [Applause.] It is conceded by his opponents that his retirement from the Executive Office the nation was prosperous and united. [Cheers.] You have [illegible] President, that universal [illegible] him for his fi[illegible] the dignity [illegible] Mr. FILLMORE left it at the close of his term. [Laughter.] Yet he is assailed from that quarter with a degree of violence which indicates deep personal and political hostility. You would suppose that it was he who repealed the Missouri Compromise and furnished weapons to the Border Ruffians. [Laughter and applause.] But it is well known that he has always condemned that iniquitous measure and all the lawless outrages which have resulted from it. I find myself, this morning, suddenly called upon by the largest newspaper in the American world, to give an exposition of Mr. FILLMORE's opinion on certain phases of the Kansas question. It has been my good fortune to solicit any special expression of his views on these possible contingencies. In his letter of acceptance he alludes to his former administration as [illegible] there. [Great cheering.] This [illegible] that he will execute the laws [illegible] Col. FREMONT [illegible] any case [illegible] the [illegible] Congress [illegible] Kansas question [illegible] Congress to admit them. [Cheers.] It is the province of Congress to decide upon the constitutional legislation which has been strongly urged upon the country. That these odious enactments cannot stand is sufficiently shown by the fact that nearly all the Northern Senators have voted to repeal them. [Applause.] If, Mr. President, said Gov. HUNT, addressing himself to Mr. BEAVER, they are still in force when you take your seat in the next Congress, I trust you will see to it that they are promptly stricken out forever.

The Republican Party has withdrawn that part of its platform which denounces the Compromise of 1850. Still, Mr. FILLMORE is constantly arraigned for having given his approval to those measures. He was elected with General TAYLOR, under a distinct pledge that the veto power should not be exerted to defeat the will of Congress on the Slavery question. [Hisses and applause.] But it is now contended that he should have interposed his veto to arrest an adjustment which originated with CLAY, and received the sanction of the wisest patriots in the land. What was the duty of the Compromisers of 1850? Many of us would have preferred different measures in some respects; I contend that the Compromise was a wise and was favorable to Freedom, and gave no practical advantage to Slavery.

It secured California as a Free-State, thus excluding Slavery from the entire coast of the Pacific. It gave to Utah and New Mexico the control of their own domestic concerns, with no mention that negro Slavery shall exist in any portion of the country. It abolished the slave trade in the District of Columbia. In relation to fugitives it only gave the South a more efficient law for the recovery of fugitive slaves. I never approved of the detailed provisions of this latter law, in its practical operation, it has given effect to the constitutional provision on that subject. The real Fugitive Slave Law existing is the words of the Constitution, which declare that fugitives shall be given up. [Applause.] This clause was placed there by the unanimous vote of the framers of the Constitution, and is no less binding than any other of its provisions. It was a part of a system of compromises which inhabited the African slave trade for 20 years; and for this mighty boon to humanity, involving the liberty of millions of the human race, we agreed to surrender a few months' labor of a few fugitives. Those who object to the condition might, at least, be prompt to repeal or stop their clamor. Mr. FILLMORE is the man of prudence and moderation, ready to render equal justice to both sections, and to resist any encroachment upon the rights of either. It is gratifying to know that he is sustained by the conservative men in the South who were opposed to the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, and who desire a cessation of violence in Kansas and a restoration of harmony throughout the country. He is supported by BELL and HOUSTON and all the Southern Representatives who voted against the Nebraska bill, except Col. BARROW, who sustains Mr. BUCHANAN. [Applause.] What is the true and only remedy for the disorders in Kansas? It requires the abrogation of unconstitutional legislation in the Territory, and a vigorous enforcement of the laws of the land and Statutes. If elected, Mr. FILLMORE will enforce those laws, [Hisses,] and will be sustained in the discharge of that duty by good and true men in every part of the Union. He would restore law and order and peace in that unhappy Territory, too long the sport of border ruffians and demagogues. [Cheers.] This, in my judgment, is the best, if not the only hope for tranquilizing Kansas and promoting its peaceful formation into a Free State. [Cheers.] I sustain Mr. FILLMORE in the firm belief that his election would bring these difficulties to an honorable termination, and restore that harmony, which ought to be the first wish of every patriot heart. [Hearty cheers.] Would you have another four years of angry strife and contention, with confidence paralyzed, your Government indifferent to the great purposes for which it was created, and your country an object of mortification to yourselves and of derision to the enemies of free government in the old world? [Cries of "No, no!"] God forbid! Mr. FILLMORE has been arraigned for the boldness of speech with which he proclaimed the danger of sectional combinations, and it has been imputed to him that he encouraged disunion. This is an entire perversion of the spirit and meaning of his remarks. It must be recollected that he was addressing not the South, but his fellow-citizens at home, and appealing to them strongly to cling to the Union and remain faithful to the spirit of our federal compact. It seems to be assumed that patriotism and courage consist in defying distant States in the South and stimulating sectional animosities at home. My views are very different. While I never failed to maintain the rights of my own section, and to speak the truth firmly to Southern men, yet I have deemed them in the wrong. I never joined in the exaggerate and widen the differences between the sections for purposes of political agitation. [Applause.]

The most potent argument employed against the support of Mr. FILLMORE is the plea that he is unavailable and cannot be elected. This is a mere assumption. [Loud cries, "He can be elected."] It appears that an electoral ticket in his favor has been formed in nearly all the States, and that the people will at least have an opportunity to vote for him, and I would propose that they be permitted to decide the question. Who can tell in the present chase and confusion what may be their deliberate verdict in November? I only ask that all who believe his election would promote the welfare of the country, may stand firm, and pay no heed to the ominous predictions, especially when coming from those who seek his defeat. [Cheers.] My own course is not regulated by the doctrine of chances. I am not especially intent on finding the strongest side in politics. I seek only the right side, [cheers,] and in the present contest let us confidently hope it may prove the strongest. [More cheers.] It is enough for me that I can vote for him, while I cannot sustain either of his competitors, consistently with my sense of duty to the country, in the present posture of affairs. Whether he is elected or not, the vote cast for him will prove that there remains a large body of patriotic conservative citizens, in both sections, standing upon national ground, and animated by a spirit of true devotion to the peace and stability of the Union. [Applause.] Be the result what it may, this fact alone will assert a potent influence upon the course of events, and contribute to the safety of our national institutions. If you, gentlemen, and all the people of the North, were to join in this sectional combination, who might not despair of the Republic? So far as New-York is concerned, it seems to be conceded that the contest lies between Mr. FILLMORE and Mr. FREMONT. This being so, may we not appeal to every man of sound national views, regardless of party names or designations, to come forward and make the harmony of the Union paramount to all subordinate considerations? [Applause.]

I have endeavored to address you in the independent spirit of an American citizen, having no prejudices to gratify, no partisan interests to serve, but desiring above all things to promote the safety and prosperity of our common country. [Cheers.] Weighty indeed is the responsibility which rests upon the State of New-York in this remarkable contest. Geographically and commercially a middle State, she may well and wisely stand on middle ground, and interpose with a giant's strength between the violent combatants in both extremes of the country, whose struggles for supremacy threaten to shake the foundations of the Republic. [Cheers.] First among her sisters, related to them by all the ties of commerce and friendship, it becomes her to act an elevated and generous part. [Warm applause.] Her dearest interests, her cherished traditions, her future destiny, all forbid that she should separate herself from any portion of our Union, and prompt her to exert a genial influence in noble efforts to extinguish animosities and draw the family of American States closer together by the bonds of mutual sympathy, affection and confidence.

When the Governor had concluded his address the audience gave three cheers for the orator of the day; three cheers for ERASTUS BROOKS; three cheers for CHESTER DRIGGS, Esq., and three cheers for the Union.

Bradford's MS. History of Plymouth Colony.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

[illegible] History of Plymouth Colony [illegible] is agitating the historical and antiquarian people in the vicinity of Boston.

The value and importance of the work itself, and the obligations we are under to all who have been concerned in making it accessible to the public in this country, must be readily acknowledged—but is it not singular that such a notice of it as the following should have been published as long ago as 1848, without attracting the attention of any of the historians? I happen to know that it escaped some of the sharpest critics and ablest historical writers among us, who hunched Rev. Mr. ALLEN's volumes since they were first published; and I think it more than probable that I should not, have noticed it, when they appeared for the first time, came into my hands, had I not been put upon the alert by the reports of the discovery.

You will observe that the following gives no room for a doubt as to the author of the MS. referred to, and does not leave it to conjecture of passages or handwriting, but expressly states the fact. Rev. Mr. ALLEN, in illustrating the peculiar eccentricity of the Prentices to the Pilgrims, says in a note:

"Few passages are to be found to which this hatred of Puritans was what the Pressed author is concerned in more strong than in Bradford's MS. History of Plymouth Colony, of which he was the last Governor. The manuscript, which was in the possession of the Mather family, was given to Prince, who gave it to the Old Colony Library, where it remained till the Revolution, when it was lost. It was in folio, and contained about 250 pages. It was written in a very plain hand, and was in good preservation. It was quoted by Prince, Hutchinson, Belknap, Holmes, Bancroft, and others, who have written on the subject of the Puritans. Dr. Mather, Prince, Hutchinson, and others, have left on record their testimony to the value of the work, and their regret at its loss. Dr. Mather, who had seen it, says it was 'a most pleasant piece of antiquity, wrote by the hand of the Governor himself.' Prince, who had seen it, says it was 'a most pleasant piece of antiquity, wrote by the hand of the Governor himself.' Hutchinson, who had seen it, says it was 'a most pleasant piece of antiquity, wrote by the hand of the Governor himself.' Belknap, who had seen it, says it was 'a most pleasant piece of antiquity, wrote by the hand of the Governor himself.' Holmes, who had seen it, says it was 'a most pleasant piece of antiquity, wrote by the hand of the Governor himself.' Bancroft, who had seen it, says it was 'a most pleasant piece of antiquity, wrote by the hand of the Governor himself.' Others, who have written on the subject of the Puritans

THE ADDRESS OF WELCOME.

The procession having marched through the principal streets, arrived at the Peabody Institute at about [illegible] o'clock. Mr. Peabody, Hon. Mr. Daniels, His Excellency the Governor and Staff, and several others [illegible] to the residence of Enos Sutton, Esq., [illegible] where they made a short stay.

On arriving, Hon. Mr. Amory, in behalf of the citizens of Danvers, welcomed Mr. Peabody in a neat address, in the course of which he referred in the following terms to Mr. Peabody's munificent donations to and of the educational interests of his native town:

"Wherever his lot has been cast, every worthy object of benevolent and humane enterprise has received his sympathy and aid, in an especial manner has he remembered and cherished us. When fire desolated our village and swept away the sacred house where in childhood we had learned those truths which have been our guide and stay during nearly a century of mortal years, he helped to rear the temple anew, and point again the spire to heaven. Whatever local pride would rear an enduring monument to the memory of our fathers, who fell in the first fight of the Revolution, it was his bounty, although he lived beneath the very shadow of the storm cloud which that Revolution snatched its lightning from, that assisted in raising the granite monument to future ages the names and fame of our venerated martyrs. So when, adopting a new plan in the course of public education, he established two High Schools for the better training of our youth, it was his watering generosity that nourished new life, and kindled fresh desire for knowledge, by ordaining a system of prize medals, at once discriminating and judicious, and which will [illegible] his name in the affections of unborn generations of youthful scholars. And lastly, when four years ago, the town of Danvers celebrated the Centennial of its incorporation, it was the same constant, generous friend that sent to our festival that noble sentiment—a debt due from present to future ages—and, in payment of his share of it, gave to the inhabitants of the town "a fund for the promotion of knowledge and virtue." Since that day his bounty, like the dew of heaven, has flowed forth unceasingly, until the fund has been more than doubled, and upon this spot, is founded an Institute of Science, of unmistakable power, and whose benefits and influence for future years, and upon the generations yet to come, we can only conjecture."

MR. PEABODY'S SPEECH.

At the conclusion of this speech, Mr. Peabody advanced to the front of the stage, amid the cheers of the people, and replied as follows:

"Fellow-Citizens: I have listened to your eloquent words of welcome with the deepest emotion, and return you for them my most sincere acknowledgments. My heart tells me that I am in common association. This vast gathering of old friends and old associates, their children and grandchildren, to welcome me to the home of my early years, has proved me an invalid, and unusual success in the pursuit of fortune in other lands, I am [illegible] the humble boy who left yonder unpretending [illegible] very many years ago.

[illegible] to decline many proffered [illegible] but I could not resist the impulse which [illegible] to accept yours, and to revisit the scenes [illegible] in the days gone by, with your prosperity and [illegible] with your kindness and your [illegible] my heart to see you.

[illegible] changes to which [illegible] impress me. You have yourselves [illegible] and have gradually become familiar, but to me, who have been so long [illegible] almost astounding. [illegible] that these transformations [illegible] which were the [illegible] around with the hum [illegible] improvement, and com[illegible] even converted [illegible] and made it [illegible] of a generation of a year, ful na[illegible] the old and fading, while the [illegible] of a new [illegible].

[illegible] turn to a more pleasing theme, and call [illegible] to the brightest portion of the picture [illegible] turning to the other part of the platform, Mr. [illegible] addressed the children:

"One of the most pleasing and touching incidents of [illegible] is the large number of scholars who have come here to bid me welcome and who now surround [illegible] words to you, my dear young friends. You remember that just a few [illegible] before you will occupy the same [illegible] your own children which your parents [illegible] yourselves. The training for [illegible] talent, for the use or abuse [illegible] will, on a future day, be called upon to [illegible] May you then be ready to meet [illegible] with a [illegible] There is not a youth within the sound of my voice, but that there have been and are, great women as well as great men, [illegible] daughters, as wives, and as mothers, and I trust that future times may record many a name so distinguished, whose seeds of good were sown within this town; and allow me to hope that my eye now rests upon some of them.

May the gifts I have given be imparted upon your young hearts. Richly given with great discretion, by one who had much experience in the world, and although Providence has smiled upon all his labors, it has never ceased to feel and lament the want of that early education—which is now so freely offered to each one of you. This is the first time we have met. It may prove the last. But while I live I shall feel a warm interest in your welfare. God bless you all.

During the delivery of this speech the street extending by the Institute was completely jammed, and all the house-tops within hearing distance were crowded. The speech was frequently applauded.

THE PROCESSION.

After some delay a new procession was formed, which proceeded to J. R. Smith's mammoth tent, where that well-known caterer had provided dinner for about 1,500 persons. The tent was decorated with flags, streamers, &c., and the head of it represented by a beautiful wreath of evergreen entwined with dahlias, an American eagle, holding in its beak the inscription—

"England my abiding place—America my home."

At the right hand, extending the whole length of the tent, was a table raised a few feet above the rest. About midway of this table was seated Mr. Peabody, Hon. Edward Everett on his right hand, and Hon. Mr. Daniels, the President of the day, and Governor Gardner and staff.

Immediately behind these gentlemen, beneath a canopy of flags, was a large stuffed eagle, holding in its beak a fine wreath of flowers.

Hon. R. S. Daniels, President of the day, made a few opening remarks, closing with the following sentiment:

A cordial and hearty welcome to the distinguished citizen, eminent merchant and public benefactor.

Mr. Peabody then arose, amid the most tumultuous applause, and cheers after cheers, and spoke as follows:

MR. PEABODY'S DINNER SPEECH.

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen: The reception you have given me to-day overpowers me. Few boys ever left a New-England home under circumstances more humble than I did; none could return more honored, too, where honor is said not to be usual, in his own country and among his own kindred. I feel proud as well as grateful at these testimonials, so far beyond my merits, but so gratifying to my heart, and which I shall ever esteem the greatest honor of my life. You have alluded, Mr. Chairman, to my course as a merchant. Heaven has been pleased to reward my efforts with success, and has permitted me to establish, through my own exertions, a house in the great metropolis of England, which I think my mercantile friends here present will sustain me in saying sustains a high character and credit throughout the world. Coming back to the home of my childhood, I honestly confess that I feel great pride in this, and I do not believe that you will accuse me of egotism in saying so. I have endeavored, in the constitution of its members and the character of its business, to make it an American house, and to give it an American atmosphere—to furnish it with American journals—to make it a centre for American news, and an agreeable place for my American friends visiting London. That I have partially succeeded in doing so I think I have reasonably conclude from the flattering testimonials which I have received since my arrival in this country. [Cheers.] You have also been pleased to allude to my humble efforts to promote good feeling between Great Britain and the United States, by increasing the social intercourse between my English and American friends. That a cordial alliance ought to exist between those two countries, founded on social intercourse and personal friendships, as well as mutual interests, is an opinion which I share with most persons who have had the opportunity to see both. [Applause.] I am happy indeed if my humble efforts have aided in promoting such good feeling. If there are two nations on the face of the earth that ought to be connected by the closest ties of mutual good will, they are these two countries. [Renewed applause.] It is not in the language ordinarily used that I point to the similarity in their institutions, their laws, their language and their commercial interests. The exports of this country to Great Britain are larger than to all the world besides. The exports from Great Britain to this country, though not relatively so large, are on an equally gigantic scale. A monetary crisis in one country is generally followed by like results in the other. A change in financial policy on the one side is met by a responsive change on the other. The journals of each country reflect at length each others views and sentiments. Out of this very intimacy of relations there grows frequent cause of difference; but I am sure that, notwithstanding the little outbursts of jealousy which occasionally show themselves, England is not less proud of her offspring than is America of the parent stock. I can assure you that, from the universally beloved Queen who rules those realms, down to her humblest subject, one feeling of good will towards this country prevails. [Three cheers for the Queen.] I say this with the greatest confidence, since I see around me many gentlemen who have had an opportunity to see for themselves whether these things are so. To none can I appeal more confidently than to you, Sir, (turning to Mr. Everett,) who have filled the most important office abroad in the gift of our Government, with so much honor to your own country and so much satisfaction to those to whom you were accredited. [Loud cheers.] I have been reminded to-day that one who followed worthily in the footsteps of my friend on my right has passed away. The corner-stone of the Peabody Institute was laid by Abbott Lawrence, but before it was completed his pure spirit had left the world. I admired him for his practical talents; I respected him for his virtues, and loved him as a friend. Like myself, he was convinced of the great importance of conciliation, forbearance and mutual good will between England and America. During his whole mission he labored earnestly to cultivate these feelings, and I take a melancholy pleasure in adding my humble tribute to his memory—in testifying, not only to the profuseness of his own hospitalities, and the constancy of his own labors to these ends, but to the heartiness and zeal with which he cooperated in my more humble efforts. The memory of such a man as Abbott Lawrence is doubly blessed. Allow me to conclude by proposing a toast:

Our old town of Danvers, as it was constituted in 1752—Although separated by conventional lines, may she know none but civil divisions.

And, in connection with this sentiment, permit me to express a hope that the Peabody Institute, as it was established in 1852, as it exists now, and as it shall hereafter exist, may prove a perpetual bond to unite the towns of Danvers and South Danvers.

To the second regular toast—"Massachusetts"—Gov. Gardner responded.

SPEECH OF EDWARD EVERETT.

The next regular toast was—

England and America—Pulchra mater Pulchrior filia—Long may they flourish in the bonds of peace, rivals in their efforts to civilize and Christianize the world.

Hon. Edward Everett responded as follows:

Mr. President: I suppose you have called upon me to respond to this interesting toast, chiefly because I filled, a few years ago, a place abroad, which made me in some degree the associate of your distinguished guest in the kindly office of promoting good will between the two great branches of the Anglo-Saxon or Anglo-Norman race, (for I do not think it matters much by which name you call it,) "the fair mother and this fairer daughter," to which the toast alludes. At all events, I had much opportunity, during my residence in England, to witness the honorable position of Mr. Peabody in the commercial and social circles of London, his efforts to make the citizens of the two countries favorably known to each other, and generally that course of life and conduct which has contributed to procure him the well-deserved honors of this day, and which shows that he fully enters into the spirit of the sentiment just propounded from the Chair. To the prayer of that sentiment, Sir, I fully respond, desiring nothing more ardently in the foreign relations of the country than that these two great nations may be rivals only in their efforts to promote the welfare and improvement of mankind. They have already done, they are now doing much at home and abroad, to promote that end by the arts of peace. Whenever they disperse they can sweep everything before them—when they are at variance, when they pull opposite ways, it is the annihilation of much of the moral power of both. Whenever England and America combine their influences in promoting a worthy object, it moves forward like a vessel propelled by the united force of wind and steam; but when they are in conflict with each other it is like the struggle of the rolling engine against the opposing tempest. If well it the labouring vessel holds her own—there is danger that she may be wrecked under the mountain waves or drifts upon the rocks. It is quite obvious to remark, on this occasion and on this subject, while you are offering a tribute of respect to a distinguished man of business, that these two great nations, which are doing so much for the advancement of civilization, are the pre-leading commercial nations of the world, that they have grown rich, powerful and consequent to a height unknown before. And this consideration, Sir, will serve to justify you and your fellow-citizens, if they need justification, for the honors you and [illegible] on the guest of the day. Of all the commercial nations of modern times, of all the commercial nations of ancient times, of all the commercial nations that have been distinguished for commerce, the world never have been distinguished for commerce, the world never have been distinguished for commerce, the world never

[illegible]

[illegible] Nature is violated, for history has its practical illustration everywhere. Divine institution is violated, because it has been in the theocracy of the Jews designed as a punishment for moral degradation. When tribes or nations had reached that vicious condition of the intellect and affections which indicated the loss of moral will, the fact and the evidence of his capacity for self-government constitute was adjudged upon them as the punishment and informatory correction which was necessary to their reformation. What was designed and inflicted in the other dispensation of Heaven was constantly occurring in the history of the profane nations. The offence of Ham indicated that degradation, which must, of inherent force, be hereditary, and deserved the punishment inflicted—"a servant of servants."—(Gen. ix., v. 25, and Barker's Note.)

The sacred history is replete with punishment of a similar and of frequent threatenings of the same judgment. In the case of Jacob and Esau, the misplaced affections of the father for the weak and irresolute, though cunning hunter, were overruled in favor of the plain man that dwelt in tents, who should have people to serve him and nations to bow to him. The cunning hunter is unfit for a master or ruler; order and government first sprung up in settled life and fixed pursuits.—Gen., ch. 25, 26, 27; Deut., ch. 28, v. 44. Read your Bibles carefully, and no fact will be more evident than the infliction of servitude for generations, aye, and "forever," according to the manifest depravity of the delinquent tribe or family.

Christianity found servitude existing, and regulated, not destroyed it. Paul's Epistle to Philemon is a religious writ of moral restitution: Onesimus was an unprofitable slave to Philemon, v. 11; he became a fugitive from labor in his vagabond state he met Paul, and was converted by him, v. 10; the effect of this conversion was to make him dutiful and profitable, v. 11; and thus, made profitable, "I have sent again." There can be no argument or appeal to the midel heart in favor of this "sacred writ of restitution," to say other, none is needed.

There is an important truth which mankind cannot learn too soon and which has its manifestation in individual and national life. That an error or vice of principle will, sooner or later, produce evil effects which can be traceable directly to such errors or vice, and the evil will be correspondent to the importance of the principle; and frequently the importance of the principle can only be ascertained by the magnitude of the evils which results. In individual life, infamous or dishonorable character and conduct is the result of a false theory, or the adoption of a false principle—as a false notion of generosity will produce profligacy—an easy temper, or love of approbation, mislead into vicious practices, high spirit into violence, and the decencies of life are sometimes disregarded as a sign of talent.

In national life, an honest intention to extend liberty by may degenerate into licentiousness; liberality of sentiment may encourage infidelity. The most remarkable in the history of the race, of the bitter results of this fact, is the wide-spread and devastating infidelity of France, originating in the adoption of the fundamental principles of LOCKE's philosophy—that all our ideas originate through the senses. This led to materialism—materialism to atheism—atheism to murder, rapine, false philosophy and wide-spread and horrible desolation. And the terror and enormity of these again are increased when they are associated with those abnormal aberrations of the intellect and the affections which make and mark a national frenzy, which dethrones reason, subverts order, confounds intelligence, perverts social regard, inflames passion and infuriates motive.—Richmond Enquirer.

Personal difficulty between Messrs. J. M. Botts and R. G. Scott—Amicable adjustment.

From the Richmond Whig, Oct. 9.

The friends of the Hon. JOHN M. BOTTS and ROBERT G. SCOTT, Esq., are hereby informed that the late difference between them has been adjusted honorably to both parties, in the following manner and terms:

Dr. JOHN DOVE having called on Mr. Botts, the morning after his speech in Petersburg, and being in conversation respecting Mr. Scott and himself, was shown a letter which he had received the day before, from ROBERT G. SCOTT, Esq., dated Washington City, September 22, 1856, and which Mr. Botts had not then answered, but which he was in the act of answering, and consulted with Dr. Dove as to the character of the answer which he should make, and stating fully and clearly what he intended his answer should be.

At this time, Mr. SCOTT was absent from Virginia. Dr. DOVE at once concluded within himself that, as soon as Mr. SCOTT returned, he would, as the mutual friend of each of the gentlemen, see Mr. SCOTT and endeavor to reconcile their differences, which resolve Dr. DOVE did not make known to any one.

Mr. SCOTT returned to the city on the 3d day of October, 1856, and as soon as Dr. DOVE could do so, he called on Mr. SCOTT at his house, and saw him at about ½ o'clock in the afternoon of the 3d of October. Dr. DOVE informed Mr. SCOTT of the object of his visit, and they conversed very freely alone for some time. In the course of their conversation Mr. SCOTT remarked that he intended the language which he had used in his speech at Corinthian Hall, in this city, and in the city of Petersburg, to be strongly argumentative and denunciatory of Mr. BOTTS' speech, delivered in the African Church in this city a few nights before, and that it was not intended to be applied personally to Mr. BOTTS. Finally, at the instance and solicitation of Dr. DOVE, Mr. SCOTT agreed that he would name a friend who would meet any friend that Mr. BOTTS might name, and the whole matter of difference be referred to them, and Mr. SCOTT then named JOHN M. GREGORY as his friend. The same evening Dr. DOVE informed Mr. BOTTS of his interview with Mr. SCOTT, and of what had been said and done, and Mr. BOTTS thereupon agreeing to the reference, selected as his friend Dr. JOHN DOVE.

On the 4th of October, 1856, about 11 o'clock A. M., Dr. JOHN DOVE called at the office of Mr. JOHN M. GREGORY, and informed him of the foregoing arrangement. Mr. GREGORY not having seen Mr. SCOTT since his return to the city, nor had any direct communication with him, declined acting until he could see him and so informed Dr. DOVE. It was then agreed to delay action until 1½ o'clock, so as to afford to Mr. GREGORY time to see Mr. SCOTT. Mr. GREGORY went to the house of Mr. SCOTT, and at the appointed hour met Dr. DOVE. After a full and frank conversation between Dr. DOVE and JOHN M. GREGORY, it was agreed by them that the letter of Mr. SCOTT, of the 3d of October, 1856, was of such a character that nothing could be done until it was removed out of their way, and they agreed to consider it temporarily waived. This being done, they came to the following conclusions:

First—That Mr. BOTTS shall retract all the expressions in his speeches delivered in this city and in the city of Petersburg which in any manner impugn or reflect upon Mr. SCOTT as a gentleman.

Second—Mr. SCOTT having stated to Dr. DOVE, and admitted to Mr. GREGORY that the language used by him in his speech at Corinthian Hall in this city, and in his speech a few nights afterwards in the city of Petersburg, was intended by him to be strongly argumentative and denunciative of the speech delivered by Mr. BOTTS at the African Church in this city, a few nights preceding, but was not intended to be applied personally to Mr. BOTTS.

We are of the opinion that, as soon as JOHN M. BOTTS, Esq., and ROBERT G. SCOTT, Esq., shall approve and ratify our action, there will no longer exist any just cause of difference between them in consequence of the speeches herein referred to.

MONDAY, Oct. 6, 1856. JOHN DOVE,
JOHN M. GREGORY.

RICHMOND, Monday, Oct. 6, 1856.—This paper embodies all that I can ask; and I therefore concur in the settlement proposed. JOHN M. BOTTS.

RICHMOND, Monday, Oct. 6, 1856.—I concur in the settlement proposed by Dr. DOVE and Mr. GREGORY, in the manner set forth in the within paper.

Judge Magrath Declines being a Candidate for Congress.

From the Charleston Mercury, Oct. 8.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the friends of Hon. A. G. MAGRATH, held to-day at 10 o'clock, the following letter was laid before them.

MY DEAR SIR: I thank you for your kind letter. But my mind is completely settled as to the course I should pursue. I am not a candidate, and will not serve if elected. I am grateful to my friends, but they will serve me best to let recent events lose the excitement they have caused. I have no wish to seek the public judgment in the tumult of an election. Such a course is due to myself—it is due to my brother.

I must ask you to have it stated in the most public manner, and without delay, that I am no candidate, and will not consent to be so considered, and would not serve even if elected.

This is not with me a question of policy, but of propriety, and such a question none can decide but myself. Yours, very truly,

A. G. MAGRATH.

Upon motion, it was thereupon

Resolved, That the Committee receive, with much regret, the information contained in the letter of Hon. A. G. MAGRATH, but that they nevertheless feel themselves constrained, however reluctantly, to yield their own wishes to the fixed determination of the gentleman, who is still the object of their preference, and they hereby express their acquiescence in his decision.

H. GOURDIN, Chairman.

CHARLESTON, Tuesday, Oct. 7, 1856.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN BUFFALO—LOSS $70,000.—A fire broke out last evening, about 10½ o'clock, in the Queen City Mills, at Black Rock, which consumed the entire mill and adjoining buildings.

The fire was first seen to break out in the second story in the west end, and from connection with the mill had already risen to remove the books and papers before the entire building was in flames. There was insured for $20,000 and $10,000 in value of wheat in the mill, but as fast as the last burning was discovered yesterday morning, the mills were owned by HIRAM SMITH, of Wheatland, in Genesee County, and were valued at about $60,000, and were insured we learn for $40,000.

[illegible]

The firemen were all on the ground long before dark for any service. Fears were entertained for the safety of the Clinton Mill, but it did not catch fire.—Buffalo Courier, Oct. 8.

A GREAT CHANGE IN QUALITY MAKING SPECIALLY THE people of this country anxious to use the Cassimeres, Jeans, &c. The whole thing has been misunderstood and misrepresented. A great deal has been said, and very little has been said to our purpose to say quickly. Look for date progress without the change of a week.

Every morning [illegible] Tailors, the Health Officer, the Sewer, shall, the present location can be subject to individual [illegible] shall it be? This is the question, for, as it must, and the law of the State makes no provision for its removal, Sandy Hook was selected as the place most suitable and reported to the Legislature by the Investigating Committee from that body. This Committee held its meetings in public places in New-York, to obtain every possible information on the subject. Mariners, pilots, engineers, &c., testified under oath, and their report was presented to the Legislature, and upon its facts the law of 1855 for the removal was passed.

The same Committee personally visited every place that could be named, as suitable for a Quarantine establishment, and none would answer except Sandy Hook. These are historical facts.

One only place was suggested in the place of Sandy Hook. This was to scuttle large old steamships in the lower bay, and utilize the foundation of New-York, and turn them into floating hospitals. This plan was advocated by some eminent physicians in New-York; but who in New-York or New-Jersey would like a fleet of floating pest-ships to be anchored in the midst of their great water highway to New-York? Every Jerseyman would vote against such a Quarantine, if they had anything to say in the movement, and every Monmouth man will gladly prefer Sandy Hook by all odds to such a location.

The truth is, we begin to see this matter in its proper light. At Sandy Hook the Quarantine will be more remote from New-Jersey than it now is. Barren Point is four times nearer to the hospitals than they will be to Monmouth when placed upon the Hook. This county will receive all the advantages of the establishment, without any of its disadvantages. A flourishing town must spring up near it. Such has been the case on Staten Island, and why will not such be the case in Monmouth? Who can deny this? and many of us in the county begin to see this plainly. The tens of thousands of dollars that constantly flow into Staten Island from the Quarantine, it is most plain, will be turned into Monmouth. Is not this plain enough? Yours, &c. MONMOUTH.

Schism in the Roman Catholic Church of Chicago.

EXCOMMUNICATION OF FATHER CHINIQUY, THE GREAT APOSTLE OF TEMPERANCE.

The following authentic document has been published in all the Catholic Churches of our country, and posted up at all the doors of the same:

PASTORAL LETTER.

To the Clergy and Laity of our Diocese, Greeting, and blessing on our Lord, Jesus Christ:

Rev. M. CHARLES CHINIQUY, late Pastor of Ste. Anne's, Beaver Creek Settlement, Kankakee County, in this Diocese of Chicago, has been formally suspended by me for canonical causes.

The said M. C. CHINIQUY, notwithstanding this suspension, has wickedly presumed to exercise the functions of the sacred ministry, to preach, administer sacraments, and say mass, and has thus made himself irregular, and has formally placed himself in open opposition to the authority of the Church, and become schismatic.

The said M. CHARLES CHINIQUY, thus formally admonished by me by letter and by verbal instruction, having publicly and obstinately set at defiance his violation of the laws of the Church, and disobedience of the authority, is hereby excommunicated, and I caution all Catholics against having any communication with him whatever in spiritual matters.

Should any Catholic become refractory to this order, he also becomes excommunicated.

† ANTHONY O'REGAN.
Bishop of Chicago, and Admin'r of Quincy.

Given at the Episcopal Residence, Chicago, Sept. 3, 1856.

The Chicago Press, in publishing the Bishop's letter, says:

"The causes of Mr. CHINIQUY's original suspension are not told. He has long been known as an advocate of the cause of temperance, but it is scarcely fair to assume that that would be deemed sufficient reason for the infliction of ecclesiastical punishment. He traveled in Canada a good deal in his capacity of lecturer, and it is possible that he may have thus neglected his clerical charge."

Elisha Kent Kane, M. D., U. S. N.:

DEAR SIR: The undersigned, your fellow-citizens, have recently been apprised that you are shortly to leave your native country for a visit to Europe.

Whilst we regret your departure, and especially that it is owing to the state of your health, you are obliged to seek another climate, we feel a satisfaction in the confidence that a welcome awaits you in England that will do much to compensate you for the toils and sufferings you have endured in the cause of humanity and science.

As Philadelphians, we are proud of your achievements and desire that you should not depart from your native city without offering you some evidence that we appreciate your noble and self-denying services. We, therefore, beg your acceptance of an invitation to a public dinner, to be given by your fellow-citizens, at such time as may suit your convenience.

Mr. Everett to the Printers.

EDWARD EVERETT sent the following reply to an invitation to take part in the New-Hampshire Printers' Festival:

BOSTON, Monday, Sept. 29, 1856.

Dear Sir: Your favor of the 26th reached me on Saturday. I am much indebted to the committee for their kind invitation to attend the celebration of the 8th of October. It would afford me the greatest pleasure to unite with you in the celebration of so memorable event as the introduction of printing into New-Hampshire. Not to mention the other attractions of the day, I should delight to listen to Dr. PRABODY on the topics suggested by such an anniversary. I much regret that an engagement of an earlier standing in Boston compels me to forego the gratification.

Should a suitable opportunity present itself, I venture to request you to offer the subjoined toast to the company in my behalf.

I am, dear Sir, with much respect,
Very truly yours,

EDWARD EVERETT.

Result of the Town Elections in Connecticut.

The Buchanan[illegible] have been extremely busy circulating, after their wont, false reports about the Connecticut elections, and have endeavored to produce the impression that the State can be claimed by the sham Democracy. Telegraphic reports, equally false, have been published. The following, however, from the New-Haven Journal and Courier, puts the matter right:

"We published, yesterday, returns from 133 towns, showing 26 gained for FREMONT, and 13 for BUCHANAN and FILLMORE, making a net gain of 13 towns for FREMONT over last year—a very habitable gain. We add this morning the following additional returns:

FREMONT—Bethlem, 5, Bozrah, North Stonington, Franklin, Middlebury, Harwinton.

BUCHANAN—Preston, Ledyard, Scotland.

DIVIDED—Woodbury, South Windsor.

This makes 156 towns, about all that voted, and FREMONT gains 30, while BUCHANAN loses 19, showing a net Fremont gain of 44 towns, and a popular majority of some three thousand over BUCHANAN and FILLMORE. These returns are compiled from the most authentic sources, and may, we are confident, be relied upon. The gains and losses are calculated on the official statement of the Hartford votes of last year, called to be sent over telegraphic wires. Old Connecticut speaks out strong for FREMONT."

[illegible] Mr. JOHN MINOR BOTTS is heading off the secessionists of Virginia quite as effectually as [illegible] heeded Captain TYLER. The Buchanan organs of that State speak their wrath in [illegible] rage, and let out the secret of their [illegible] by charging BOTTS with helping FREMONT. This is a virtual confession that the [illegible] of their disunionist clamor is simply to insure FREMONT and help BUCHANAN. Mr. BOTTS, [illegible], loves the Union too well to permit it [illegible] to be made the sport of political gamblers. He tells the Virginia Chivalry, with GOV. WISE at their head, that they cannot dissolve the Union even in the event of FREMONT's election.

But Mr. BOTTS declares his intention to vote for Mr. FILLMORE; and he thus proclaims his disbelief of the statement that Mr. FILLMORE himself has predicted disunion as the result of Col. FREMONT's election:

"It has been charged upon Mr. FILLMORE that he said that the election of FREMONT would be just cause for a dissolution of the Union. If he has said it, I would be the last man in the United States that would vote for him. Dissolve the Union because FREMONT is elected! Well, if Fillmore is no better, as they declare he is not, and the Union is to be dissolved, why not dissolve it if Fillmore is elected? And it comes to this at last, that the Democratic Party are prepared to dissolve the Union rather than give up the spoils. [Cheers.] Aye, gentlemen, power and plunder are of more consequence to them all than this consecrated Union. [Cheers.]"

If Mr. BOTTS sticks to this, he cannot vote for Mr. FILLMORE; for we propose to show him that he did say precisely what is charged.

We have before us an authentic copy of Mr. FILLMORE's speeches at Albany, Newburg, and Rochester,—published at the office of the Express, and, therefore, genuine. From that document we copy the following extract from Mr. FILLMORE's speech at Albany:

"We see a political party presenting candidates for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency, selected for the first time from the Free States alone, with the avowed purpose of electing these candidates by suffrages of one part of the Union only, to rule over the whole United States. Can it be possible that those who are engaged in such a measure can have seriously reflected upon the consequences which must inevitably follow in case of success? Can they have the madness or the folly to believe that our southern brethren would submit to an government by such a Chief Magistrate? Suppose that the South, having a majority of the electoral votes, should declare that they would only have divided for President and Vice-President, and should elect such by their exclusive suffrages to rule over us at the North. Do you think we would submit to it? No, not for a moment. And do you believe that your Southern brethren are less sensitive on this subject than you are, or less jealous of their rights? If you do, let me tell you that you are mistaken. And, therefore, you must see that if this sectional party succeeds, it leads inevitably to the destruction of this beautiful fabric reared by our forefathers, cemented by their blood, and bequeathed to us as a priceless inheritance."

There, Mr. BOTTS! Does not Mr. FILLMORE say that it is madness and folly to believe that our Southern brethren will submit to be governed by such a "Chief Magistrate" as Col. FREMONT? Does he not predict the dissolution of the Union as the immediate, "inevitable" result of his election?

We call on Mr. BOTTS to fulfill his pledge and not vote for such a candidate. If he has any doubt about the accuracy of our quotation let him send to the Express office and get an authorized copy of the speech.

The Wise Epidemic in Virginia.

The Charleston Mercury in commenting on Gov. WISE's last crazy speech in Richmond, extols it in the highest terms, and says:

"We must not allow our hopes to falter, by supposing that the spirit and determination which breathes in the address of Gov. WISE, is confined to a section of Virginia. Gentlemen who have traveled and conversed largely in all parts of that State, assure us that the feeling is almost universal; that the real men of Virginia everywhere, feel and express their conviction, that the election of the Black Republican candidate for the Presidency will be, and ought to be, the knell of the Union."

Still, we have very strong evidences that the disunion insanity of Governor WISE is not half so wide-spread and deep-seated as the Mercury represents. So long as there is any probability of frightening timid dough-faces into voting for BUCHANAN or FILLMORE, the sensible and conservative portion of the Virginians will allow the wild ravings of Governor WISE to pass for what they are worth; but, if he should ever attempt to make a practical demonstration of his disunionism, there will be no lack of patriotic spirit in the Old Dominion, on either side of the Blue Ridge, to save the State from the peril in which his rashness might involve it.

But even the Mercury pooh poohs at Governor WISE's threats of war, and at his picture of the desolation which would inevitably ensue from disunion. It thinks that a separation of the States might be had without any trouble, and that treaties of amity and commerce could be entered into in the most conciliatory spirit, between the North and the South, without creating a ripple on the surface of society. The reasons for this belief may be regarded as perfectly satisfactory by the constituents of KEITT and BROOKS, but they will be considered rather wild by all other people. The chief reliance of the Mercury in the event of secession is in the want of military force and training at the North, and the inability of the Fremont Government to muster more than a thousand men to resist the South. Here is a specimen of the rigmarole with which the Mercury befools its readers:

"What, then, have they to depend upon, supposing that, according to Mr. Speaker BANKS, they chose to exercise their power as the majority and possessors of the Federal Government; what have they to depend upon as the means of subjugating the South? Could this Fremont Government possibly bring to bear upon any single point of the South more than a thousand regular troops? And are we to shrink before such a demonstration as this? Are the fifty thousand armed and trained militia of South Carolina, or the two hundred thousand sturdy Virginians or Marylanders to hesitate in following their convictions and their duties, because so pitiful an object as this may be interposed?"

A VIRGINIA JUDGE.—There is a Judge of the Supreme Court of Virginia named THOMPSON, who has recently been illuminating the minds of the people in the Brook Circuit, by giving them the benefit of his judicial ideas on the subject in a charge to the Grand Jury of his District. As there seems to be a reasonable prospect of a large crop of traitors in the Old Dominion, since, according to Governor WISE, every citizen of that State who thinks he ought to submit if FREMONT should be elected by the people, is a traitor, the opinion of Judge THOMPSON will be read with some interest. We transfer it to our columns from the Richmond Enquirer, as an exposition of the [illegible]

[illegible] WASHINGTON would now be pronounced traitors if they were alive. To vote for FREMONT, or to believe that Slavery is not the best possible condition for the black race, is pronounced treason, of the worst kind, by the Virginia Judge.

DEVELOPMENTS OF THE CANVASS IN OHIO.—There is some music in the Fillmore camp in Ohio. The Cincinnati Gazette publishes an exhibit of a new arrangement entered into between the Fillmoreites and Buchanieers of that State. A correspondence has passed during this month between M. A. BOLLING, a leading Fillmore spouter, and WALTER GRESWOLD, the Democratic candidate for the Board of Public Works. The cause is very weak on both sides, and so these two gentlemen propose to warm their cold blood by sleeping together. BOLLING makes the following avowal:

"I received from DOUGLAS & Co. $3,000 in New-York City on the 23d of June, and disposed of the same for the interest of the Fillmore Party of the State of Ohio. These funds were contributed by the Democratic Party. I have received funds from CHARLES RUFF and J. V. FARGAN, and paid the same to NORTON and the Secretary of the State Committee of Ohio, and I knew that the Fillmore men who are stumping the State are paid by the Democratic Party."

A private letter from GRESWOLD cries out piteously for help from BALL:

"I would get all your speeches made as soon as you can, that will give you a great impulse—a great many of the old Whigs want a full ticket, and that would encourage the Democracy to a greater effort."

The Buckeye Republicans will keep an eye smartly open for these gentlemen, and such as they. The bargain in this case may have been well drawn, but the people of Ohio are too old birds to be caught with chaff.

THE CONNECTICUT TOWN ELECTIONS.—Although the Buchanan presses are crowing over an apparent gain of a few towns in the recent local elections in Connecticut, yet they have little cause for rejoicing over the popular sentiment of the State so far as this election is an indication of the way in which the whole State will go in November. The Hartford Courant says:

"If we figure up the reduced majorities in October, of the towns which are claimed to have gone for BUCHANAN in October as well as in August, we shall find that in the 'triumphantly Democratic' towns, a loss has been sustained of at least 2,000 votes. Take Middletown for an example, which the Times says is 'overwhelmingly Democratic,' and yet they have fallen off more than 300 from their vote for BUCHANAN in April. Now we have, as we believe, clearly shown a loss of at least 6,000 votes for the Buchanan party since last April, which added to the 1,062 which BUCHANAN then wanted to elect him, gives us 7,062 votes as the least probable majority of FREMONT over BUCHANAN in Connecticut; and we ask, where are the votes to come from to change this result? If a Fillmore electoral ticket is voted for, Col. FREMONT's plurality will be necessarily much greater. We are advised that in Waterbury, Middletown, Stonington, Avon, &c., where the Fillmoreites are most numerous, the Buchanans and Fillmoreites were united in the town election against the Republicans and Fremont Americans, and yet the result indicates a popular majority of more than 1,000 for FREMONT over all."

A POOR DODGE.—Mr. MCMASTERS, whose letter, promising to prove Col. FREMONT a liar on certain conditions, has so excited the admiration of the Buchanan and Know-Nothing Coalitionists, says it was a private letter which the person to whom it was addressed had no right to publish, and also:

"1. That the assertion made in that letter is not what some represent it in their comments; and 2. That it holds the writer in honor and in reason, only to keeping his given word—which he is ready and able to do—and is not a volunteered challenge to any of those who have undertaken to reply to it."

In this way this man seeks to evade the responsibility for his calumny. He cannot dodge the issue which his own published words have made. He asserts that he can prove that Col. FREMONT has claimed to be a Roman Catholic. He must produce his evidence, or consent to be set down as a willful libeler.

ENTHUSIASM FOR FREMONT IN THE WEST.—Some idea of the tremendous enthusiasm which has taken hold of the masses in the West in favor of FREMONT and Freedom, may be formed by reference to our telegraphic column this morning. At Mansfield, Ohio, an immense gathering took place on Thursday, at which it is estimated there were 80,000 people; and at Zanesville, in the same State, yesterday, was held another meeting, at which the attendance is said to have been from thirty to fifty thousand. At Madison, Ind., also, an immense meeting was held yesterday. Every day similar accounts reach us of the overwhelming tide with which the Republican cause is sweeping onward in that section.

A CHALLENGE.—Mr. R. B. MONTGOMERY, President of the Mechanics and Workingmen's Republican Union, has challenged Ex-Gov. FLOYD, of Virginia, to discuss the issues of the approaching election with a working man, who, he promises, shall meet him for that purpose. We fear the Ex-Governor will hardly consent to come down to the level of a "mere mechanic." The "fustest families" of Virginia have peculiar notions of dignity on this subject. They own their working men, and do not permit them to enter into any discussions whatever.

ANOTHER STRAW.—One by one they drop away. The last man who has backed out from the ranks of the Democracy is Mr. HENRY G. WEBB, a Buchanan elector in Wisconsin. He declares for FREMONT, in the strongest possible terms. This is the third or fourth accession to the Republican ranks, within the space of a month, from the Buchanan and Fillmore electoral tickets of Western States.

FLORIDA ELECTION.—The latest news from Florida indicates the probable success of the Democrats, though nothing definite is yet ascertained.

Arrival of the Niagara's Mails.

The steamship Niagara arrived at Boston yesterday afternoon. Her Mails were dispatched South by the evening train, and reached the City about one o'clock this morning. The telegraphic report from Halifax anticipated all the important news.

Political Debate.

Hon. LUCIEN B. CHASE, (Buchanan) and Lieut Gov. RAYMOND, meet this evening in Brooklyn to discuss the principles at issue in the pending election. The Rocky Mountain Club have tendered the use of their Rallying Hall for the meeting, which will accordingly be held at that place corner of Orange and Fulton-streets,) at 8 o'clock.

☞ JOHN VAN BUREN addressed a large Democratic meeting at Delhi, on Thursday, at which ROBERT PARKER presided.

The Wallstreet Forgery—Rearrest of Mr. Huntington.

Mr. HUNTINGTON, whose arrest we mentioned yesterday, charged with forging the names of FERRIS & DUNNE to a note for $6,000, was yesterday rearrested by Officer BOWERS, charged with further and more extensive transactions the above-named firm. He was taken before Justice OSBORNE, by whom he was committed for examination in default of $20,000 bail. Messrs. BOLTON & HAYMAN having examined their books for his examination, entered into on the first arrest.

The case will come up for examination this morning.

[illegible] Convention of the Third District (comprising the First, Second, Third, Fifth and Eighth Wards,) was held at No. 18 White-street. JOHN A. LAMSON, Esq., of the First Ward, was chosen Chairman, and Messrs. WM. H. CROMWELL, of the Eighth, and Dr. A. C. HERRICK, of the Fifth Ward, Secretaries. Col. GUY R. PHELPS was thereupon renominated by acclamation as the Representative in Congress of the Third District, an office which he now ably fills. Mr. PHELPS, having been waited upon by a Committee, appeared and accepted the nomination in eloquent words, which were received with great applause.

MR. PHELPS'S SPEECH.

Mr. PHELPS briefly but eloquently rehearsed the history of his Congressional career, and the reasons for the ground he had taken. When nominated, two years ago, it was not, as to-night, by a unanimous vote, but by a rare majority, after a long struggle in the Convention. He had attempted faithfully to represent them on the floor of Congress, by voting for all internal improvements that were proposed, in a prudent and honest spirit, by defending, at all points, the interests of commerce, by taking an early and decided stand for Freedom in the Territories. He had voted for Mr. BANKS as speaker, because he saw clearly that he could not otherwise faithfully represent the true men of his district—men who, faithful to the instincts of humanity, to the spirit of the Constitution and to the universal sentiment of patriots both North and South, until in these latter days the Calhoun doctrine of the Extension of Slavery had been adopted by the South, believed that while it is not within our province to interfere with Slavery in the States where by local laws it now exists, its encroachments upon free territory must go no further. In the organization of the House this issue was fairly presented, and it was the main issue. [Applause.]

Mr. PHELPS said that when he returned from Washington it was with the determination not to allow himself to become a candidate again. But when he saw the unanimity with which his renomination was urged, he felt no longer at liberty to consult his private predilections. If returned by their votes to the House, he expressed his intention, while the rights of no section should suffer willingly at his hands, to devote his best energies to the consideration of the material interests of this great commercial metropolis.

With some further remarks, among others upon the necessity of the early construction of a railroad to the Pacific, the honorable gentleman took his seat, amidst applause that made the house ring.

The Buchaniers have two candidates in this District, HIRAM WALDRON and DANIEL E. SICKLES, while A. J. H. E. DUGANNE is the candidate of the South Americans.

In the Fourth District, LOUIS W. RUCKMAN was unanimously nominated. Dr. WEISSE was first nominated by acclamation, but he declined the nomination.

In the Fifth District, GEORGE H. ANDREWS was nominated on the first ballot. The Republicans in this district are sanguine of success.

The Nominating Convention of the Sixth District (comprising the Eleventh, Fifteenth and Seventeenth Wards) was held, at No. 663 Broadway. JOHN A. DEVEAU, of the Eleventh Ward was called to the chair, and J. J. TOWNSEND, of the Fifteenth, appointed Secretary. R. ROBINSON, Jr., of the Fifteenth Ward, read a letter from WM. CURTIS NOYES declining a nomination, and an informal ballot having been taken on which every vote was in favor of THOMAS B. STILLMAN, that gentleman was nominated by acclamation. The Convention then adjourned with three cheers for its candidate. Mr. S. began life as a "greasy mechanic," and is now one of the proprietors of the "Novelty Works," the largest machine shop in New-York, from which have come the engines of most of our ocean steamers.

The Buchaniers have only three candidates in this District, Messrs. HENRY HIGGS, C. D. WHALEN and JOHN COCHRANE. The South American candidate is ARAD G. WILLIAMS.

In the Seventh Congressional District, the delegates assembled at the Utah House, corner of Twenty-fifth-street and Eighth-avenue. WM. C. RUSSELL, Esq., was placed in the Chair. CHARLES MESSINGER was appointed Secretary. The candidates were General J. W. NYE, Hon. C. G. LEIGH, and LEMAN REDMOND, Esq. On the first informal ballot each candidate received seven votes each. Mr. LEIGH's name was then withdrawn, and on the second ballot, General NYE received 13 votes, and Mr. REDMOND 8. General NYE was, therefore, nominated the candidate for Congress from this district.

In the Eighth Congressional District, the delegates met at Fremont Hall, Fourth-avenue. Mr. SCOTT, of the Nineteenth Ward, was called to the Chair, and Hon. ANSON WAKEMAN, the present member, was renominated for Congress by acclamation.

"Straight Whig" Congressional Convention.

The Convention of the Third District met at RILEY's Fifth Ward Hotel, but adjourned without nominating either of the South American candidates.

The Convention of the Sixth District met at the Eleventh Ward Democratic Head-quarters, and nominated ARAD G. WILLIAMS, of the Seventeenth Ward, the South American candidate. Mr. W.'s friends urged his claims to the latter nomination, on account of his vehement but fruitless opposition, while in the Assembly last year, to the election of WM. H. SEWARD. What his claims to a nomination as a "Straight" Whig are, we cannot ascertain.

POLITICAL MISCELLANY.

An appeal to Mechanics and Workingmen against the election of EZRA'S BROOKS as Governor of New-York is in circulation in this City. It is understood to have emanated from the ranks of the Printers, and has received a large number of signatures. The circular is put forth in the name of the Executive Committee appointed by the members of the craft, and recapitulates in short compass the objections urged in past times against Mr. BROOKS for his course towards the Printers' Union. The conclusion is as follows:

"It is, therefore, that the undersigned deem it their duty, as it is their privilege, to come before the public with a protest against the election of EZRA'S BROOKS to the office of Governor of the State of New-York. We appeal to the workingmen of our fellow-citizens whether this man, so selfish, so unjust, and so illiberal, is a safe and fit man to whom to intrust the affairs of this mighty State. We appeal to the men who, like ourselves, earn their livelihood by their manual labor, to aid us in crushing out the aspirations he has built upon such a basis, and in teaching him the divine lesson that 'The laborer is worthy of his hire,' and also the political lesson that the laboring man in this free country holds in his hands the political fortunes of the most wealthy and ambitious of his fellows."

At the conclusion of Mr. BANKS' great speech in Independence Square, Philadelphia, on the afternoon of the 6th inst., some twenty-five of the Democracy lingered on the ground to discuss its merits, when a gentleman present said he could adduce an argument to prove that the Fremont party were the Union party, and that the Buchanan party were the sectional and the disunion party, which he defied any Democrat present to answer. It was thus: No Fremont man and no Fremont organ ever held that if Mr. BUCHANAN were elected President they would rebel at the popular vote. But the Buchanan men and the Buchanan press have threatened that if Mr. FREMONT is elected, they would rebel at the choice of the people and dissolve the Union. There was no response to this argument, whereupon the gentleman offered a reward of $100 for a reply; but all were mute.

The Fillmore journals not long ago paraded an announcement that Hon. GEO. P. MARSH, recently American Minister to Constantinople, had joined their ranks. But the Burlington (Vt.) Free Press, published in his own town, says:

"That Mr. MARSH has been an open and earnest advocate of the election of FREMONT and DAYTON from the first, is well known to the country, for he has addressed many assemblies on the subject. Such a contemptible misrepresentation cannot harm him, nor mislead any but the most shallow and unthinking."

A correspondent, writing from Reading, says:—All the signs of the times in Pennsylvania portend a great defeat of the Pro-Slavery Party, and a great victory for free opinion, free territories, free men, free labor, and FREMONT. The nullification threats produce the reverse effects of what they were intended. They rouse indignation and contempt, and make men determined to do all they can to elect FREMONT.

Two of the Fillmore candidates for Electors, in Louisiana, PETER ALEXANDER and WM. R. LEWIS, have recently declared, in speeches delivered by them at public meetings—the former, that if the Presidential election were confined to BUCHANAN and FREMONT, he would not vote for BUCHANAN; and the latter, that the interests of the South would be as effectually promoted by the election of JOHN C. FREMONT as by the election of JAMES BUCHANAN.

HENRY G. WEBB, Buchanan elector in Wisconsin, declares for FREMONT. He says:

"Understanding, as I do, that Col. JOHN C. FREMONT is a firm and reliable Democrat, as Democracy was known and expounded by the party in the days of purity and fidelity, and knowing that he is both a God fearing man, from the purest of motives, I feel impelled to the abandonment of the Cabinet Democrats, and the adoption of the Democratic party as it shall now be, and as it ought to be, and as it will be, if FREMONT and DAYTON are elected to the Presidency and Vice-Presidency."

The "New-York Store" in Common-place, Troy, being a branch of the house of Messrs. CARTER, QUINAN & DE FOREST, at Nos. 80 and 82 Chambers-street, in this City, was robbed a few nights since of $2,000 worth of silk goods. The transmission of the stolen property to this City was soon ascertained, and steps taken to secure its recovery. The goods were traced to a house in Fifty-ninth-street, near Broadway, and here they were yesterday found by officer MONAGHAN, of the Reserve Corps, aided by some Twenty-second Ward policemen. None of the guilty parties were apprehended, they having made good their escape through a rear window of the house where the property was found.

All that is necessary, in order to carry the election by unexampled majorities, is that the people should have the means of thoroughly understanding the recklessness, folly and imbecility of the present National Administration, the outrages of which Free-State men of Kansas are the victims, the necessity of securing that Territory to Freedom, and the qualifications of the People's candidate for the Presidency.

Contributions may be addressed to the Secretary of the Committee, Mr. A. ARNOLD, No. 151 Nassau-st., N. Y.

LITTLE, BROWN & CO.
STORY'S POEMS.
POEMS, BY WM. W. STORY.
One vol., 12mo. Price, $1.
From the Boston Transcript.
The verse of Mr. Story is of a high order, and his volume may take its place beside the best productions of the American muse. His poems will be prized by those who have a true estimate of poetic taste, art, and melodious construction.

THE BRITISH POETS.
THOMAS HOOD.
From the Boston Daily Advertiser.
We cannot speak too highly in praise of this edition (the only one that deserves the name of complete) of the British Poets.
From the New-York Times.
We really know nothing more worthy of the cordial support of the American public than this Boston edition of the English Poets.
From the New-York Courier and Enquirer.
A fairer-printed, a more tasteful, or a more valuable set of books, cannot be placed in any library.
From the Home Journal.
The best, the most permanently valuable, the most convenient, and the cheapest edition of the standard poetical literature of Great Britain ever published.
From the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.
We regard it as the most beautiful and convenient library edition of the British Poets yet published.
From the Bibliotheca Sacra.
We do not know any other edition of the British Poets which combines so many excellences.

THE POETICAL WORKS OF THOMAS HOOD.
TWO ADDITIONAL VOLUMES JUST ISSUED.
Making in all four volumes. Price $6.
This is the largest collection of Hood's Poems yet offered to the public, either in England or America.
We have in press and shall issue soon, the Works of MOORE, SOUTHEY, SCOTT, MONTGOMERY, CRABBE, MARVELL, CHATTERTON and CHAUCER.
The remainder of the series will be published as fast as the volumes can be prepared.

THE BRITISH ESSAYISTS.
SIX NEW VOLUMES.
THE ADVENTURER—THREE VOLUMES.
THE WORLD—THREE VOLUMES.
16mo.....75 Cents per Volume.
From the Boston Daily Advertiser.
No greater service can be done in the cause of good letters than this extensive dissemination of these standard compositions. They embrace the best models of style in the English language.
From the Boston Daily Chronicle.
Their claims, indeed, are very great to the respect and attention of the reading world. Such men as Steele, Johnson and Hawkesworth were among the first writers of their time.
From the Boston Post.
"The Tattler," "The Rambler," "The Guardian," "The Spectator," "The Adventurer," written by such men as Steele, Johnson, Addison, Hawkesworth, are standard compositions—models of good old English. So varied and often amusing are they, so certain to cultivate a correct style, that we believe there never was a more judicious selection could be made of works to make a family library than this edition of these Essays.
From the Boston Atlas.
As models of English prose they stand unrivaled, and deserve a place in every library, public or private, but especially in every school and town library in the country.
From the New-York Times.
A series of standard works, the value and popularity of which have only increased with time. Those who admire, as we do, the pure Saxon of Benjamin Franklin and William Cobbett, will recollect that both taught themselves to write by taking papers from "The Spectator," as their models, translating them, as it were, into their own language, and then comparing the original with their own versions.
From the Philadelphia Bulletin.
A beautiful edition—just the right size to hold in the hand without fatigue, and with type that can never hurt or weary the eyes.

AMERICAN HISTORY.
A GREAT WORK COMPLETED!
THE LIFE AND WORKS OF JOHN ADAMS,
SECOND PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.
EDITED BY HIS GRANDSON, CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS.
10 volumes 8 vo. $22 50. Volumes 1 and 10 just published.
From Rufus W. Griswold.
Of the writings of our Revolutionary worthies none have been presented to the public with as much ability, care and good faith as those of John Adams. The main portion of the labor devolved on Charles Francis Adams, who has devoted to it several years, and has set an example of thorough research and sound judgment which cannot be too highly commended.
From the Puritan Recorder.
It is a work for the statesman to read and study, a work especially suited to young men—a work with which we can well afford to identify our national reputation.
From the National Era.
Every student of American history, American laws, usages and institutions, should make himself acquainted with these papers, containing, as they do, the results of a mind of great comprehension, deep sagacity and extensive learning on the fundamental principles of government.
From the Philadelphia Bulletin.
One of the most valuable contributions yet made to American history.
From the Boston Transcript.
Such a contribution to American history we have not had before, except in the collection of the Writings of Washington and Jefferson. Probably in literary value and interest this will surpass them both.
From the North American Review.
A contribution to the materials of American history not second in importance and interest to any of the great publications with which it is most obviously to be compared.
From the New-York Tribune.
The completion of this voluminous work, containing a full collection of Mr. Adams' writings, is a matter of congratulation to every student of American history. The editor has performed his responsible task with dignity, intelligence and an evident aim at impartiality. Many of his views in regard to the comparative position and merits of eminent American statesmen are, doubtless, open to controversy; but no one can call in question the thoroughness of his research, and the clearness of his comprehension in relation to the events of the first half century of our national existence, which come within the scope of his biographical labors. The publishers, we need hardly add, have brought these volumes in the style of substantial elegance which is characteristic of their house.

THE PURITAN COMMONWEALTH.
An Historical Review of the Puritan Government in Massachusetts in its Civil and Ecclesiastical Relations, from its Rise to the Abrogation of the First Charter.
Together with some general reflections on the English Colonial Policy, and on the Character of Puritanism.
BY THE LATE PETER OLIVER.
This work treats of the construction of the Puritan Commonwealth of Massachusetts, its failure to accomplish the end of all good government, in the preservation of good order and the prevention of immorality; it discusses the Puritan Church, its intolerance, and its the persecutions of the Familists, Quakers and Baptists, and its Missionary claims, as compared with those of the Church of England and the Church of Rome; it asserts the gradual degeneracy of the Puritans, after their separation from the great Catholic body, and lastly contains reflections on the English Colonial policy, and on the general character and tendencies of Puritanism.

OFFICE OF THE NEW-YORK AND ERIE RAILROAD,
NEW-YORK, Oct. 10, 1856.
NOTICE.—AN OPPORTUNITY HAVING BEEN given to all competent engineers of this road, who had not taken an active part in exciting the recent difficulties, to return to work, and a number of such having neglected to embrace the opportunity, it is deemed proper to state for the information of other engineers and the public that they have been paid off, and will not hereafter be employed by this Company under any circumstances.
It is deemed expedient to make this statement inasmuch as they are endeavoring to deter other Engineers from accepting service by representing that in a short time the Company would reengage them and displace the new Engineers; and also by misrepresenting the rules of the road, and using other unfair measures to accomplish that purpose.
The Company, having already secured a sufficient number of Engineers to run their passenger and most of their freight trains, and having assured others who will present themselves for duty in a few days, require nothing further of those who have left the service than that they peacefully leave the road in our quiet and uncontested possession.

$500 REWARD.—JEFFRIE'S ANTIDOTE, A specific mixture for the cure of gonorrhœa, gleet, strictures and similar disorders. It makes a speedy cure without the least restriction of diet, drink, exposure, or change in application to business. Our object is to notify where it can be had; and the proprietor challenges a single case of recent gonorrhœa which the mixture will not cure, under a forfeiture of $500. Repeated experiments and long experience have proved that it will radically cure any case which can be produced. This desirable result is obtained in from two to ten days, and as it neither creates nausea nor offends the palate, and renders unnecessary any deviation in diet or interruption to usual pursuits, sound sleep or healthy digestion, the unexpired term of a cure is rendered unnecessary as a proof of the production of a thorough and permanent cure. Its ingredients are entirely vegetable, and no injurious effect, either constitutionally or locally, can be caused by its use. Price $1 per bottle. Sole agent for this City, C. H. RING, No. 192 Broadway, corner of John-st.

T. R. CALLENDER, corner 3d and Walnut sts., agent for Philadelphia. REDDING & CO., No. 8 State-st., Boston. W. L. JENISON, Albany.

DR. MAGNIN'S LUCINA CORDIAL, OR ELIXIR OF LOVE.—This delightful and positive invigorant of the human system is fast superseding all other remedies; in fact, it is the only one now fully known it will be the only remedy in use. Its action on the nervous system and reproductive organs is most extraordinary; allaying all over-excitement, and infusing into the nervous organization that degree of tension which is requisite to give the human system the enjoyment of its full powers, both mentally and physically. As an appetizer it is equally remarkable; combining with the gastric juices of the stomach, it tests them in more readily dissolving all nutritious substances, and converting them into pure and wholesome blood; thus the digestion is improved and the whole framework of man moves on in a more vigorous and harmonious manner thereby. Price, $2 per bottle, or two bottles for $3. Principal office, No. 71 Maiden-lane. DR. MAGNIN.

IMPORTANT TO FEMALES.—DR. CHEESEMAN'S PILLS.—The combinations of the ingredients in these Pills are the result of a long and extensive practice. Warranted purely vegetable, and free from anything injurious to life or health. Explicit directions, which should be read, accompany each box. Price $1. For sale by CHARLES H. RING, No. 192 Broadway; C. V. CLICKENER & CO., No. 81 Barclay-st.; BARNES & PARK, No. 304 Broadway, and Druggists generally. Sent by mail by inclosing $1 to Dr. CORNELIUS L. CHEESEMAN, Box No. 4,531 Post-Office, New-York City.

An immediate application should always be made; but if the disease has lain concealed in the system, or has spread by injudicious treatment, the undersigned knows himself especially competent to treat such cases, by a method at once safe, speedy and efficacious. NEW-YORK CITY.

☞ The narrow business streets down town are more impassable at this season of the year, perhaps, than at any other. Everybody is getting in coal for the Winter, and the sidewalks are obstructed to very step, by piles of the staple of Pennsylvania, and still more by the men who are shoveling it into the cellar holes so carelessly often that the admonition of SAXE, the poet, rises in the mind of the passer-by, with a slight alteration of the words to suit the occasion:

"Look out for your hat and look out for your head,
Lest you find that the favorite son of your mother
Has an ache in the one and a brick in the other."

For "brick read coal. Moreover, the pedestrian must be very careful or he will fall through some of the ungrated coal holes into some sub-cellar that he is passing over.

The merchants are pretty busy just now, too, shipping goods that have been sold during the last season, and the oft-complained-of nuisance of bales of goods encumbering the sidewalks calls more loudly than ever for reform. Which of the candidates for Mayor will pledge himself to abate it? At this time of the year the alterations and improvements in old buildings and the erection of new ones encumber the streets with brick and mortar and building materials and barricade the sidewalks, and sometimes the whole street. All this, especially in narrow streets, adds very little to the facilities of navigation, at no time superabundant in the lower part of the town.

Auctions at this time are in full blast, and on Nassau-street in particular the passage-way is encroached upon by articles of cabinet furniture exposed for sale, and second-hand carriages of every description plastered with the announcement that they will be sold at auction at a specified hour. Take your stuff inside, gentlemen. Clear the way.

☞ The Stonington and Fall River Boats did not arrive until 8¼ o'clock yesterday morning, owing to a heavy fog in the Sound.

☞ A new coat of white paint to the modest steeple that crowns the New-York Hospital has helped its appearance wonderfully.

☞ A genuine Native American Summer we have been enjoying lately. Look out for colds when the weather suddenly changes.

☞ The case of Captain RUSSELL, of the Thirteenth Ward, was under examination yesterday, but no result was arrived at.

Fires.

IN CENTER-STREET.

At 7 o'clock last evening a fire broke out in the third floor of the iron foundry of CORNELL & JACKSON, No. 159 Centre-street. The fire was promptly extinguished by the firemen and Sixth Ward Police. Damage trifling.

IN BROADWAY.

An alarm of fire was occasioned at 7¼ o'clock last evening by the burning of a chimney on the premises No. 548 Broadway, occupied by G. & W. MORGAN, glass stainers.

Serious, if not Fatal Accident.

On Thursday morning about 9 o'clock, a large banner or flag staff projecting from the roof of the building No. 548 Broadway, occupied by WELLMAN & JACKSON, No. 159 Daguerreotype room, accidentally gave way and descended to the sidewalk with a great crash. A lady named Mrs. VELTZE, who was passing at the time, received a severe injury from it on the head and back, completely prostrating her to the sidewalk. She was conveyed to her residence on Fourth-street, by policeman SWARTZIC. A little child who accompanied her escaped uninjured.

CAPPING POWDER CONTRARY TO LAW.—Sergeant VAN TASSELL, of the Central Park Police, yesterday seized seven wagons carrying 420 kegs, more than 10,000 pounds of powder, in Eighty-sixth-street, not being covered with leather bags according to law. Lieutenant MURR, with a squad of men, took the teams with the drivers, before Justice C. J. WARREN, of the Police Court, at Yorkville, who ordered the powder to be stored in the State Arsenal, subject to the claims of the Fire Department. This powder was part of a cargo of 4,000 kegs, on board a vessel lying at the foot of Eighty-sixth-street, East River. Soon after the powder had gone to the Arsenal, the agent of the owner came into Court, and asked by what authority the powder was arrested. Judge WARREN directed him to the statute which forbids powder being carried in any of the streets of the City of New-York, without each keg being covered with a leather bag, so that the powder may not rattle through the kegs. The agent said that they had always been accustomed to cart powder in this way, that he had once been to the Chief's Office, and he thought it was understood that the law against carrying powder was only applicable below Sixty-second-street.

Judge WARREN replied that he understood the law as it reads, not in any of the streets of the City; that the law against keeping powder related to quantity, and applied below Sixty-second-street, but the law against carrying powder related to the manner in which each keg should be secured from casualty, and applies to all the streets of the City, and that this provision was in force when the powder prohibition line was drawn through Fourteenth-street, and was the same when the line was drawn through Forty-second-street, and again now through Sixty-second-street. The Judge referred the Agent to the Mayor and Recorder for immediate relief, and if not found, then to the Court for ultimate redress. The question is important, and it is well that attention is called to the matter. The agent expressed his utmost regard for the law and the City ordinances, and declared that he was directed by the Powder Company strictly to observe them, and if there was any error it was unintentional. Let the matter be sifted, that the Company, and the citizens, and the Police may know what are their rights. If they have a right thus to cart powder through any of the streets of this City, it is important they should know it.

HUNTER'S MEDICAL SPECIALIST.—The October number of this remarkable periodical contains a most powerful and conclusive vindication of the treatment by Inhalation in all diseases of the respiratory organs. The dogmatic, illiberal and unfounded opposition given in some quarters to this rational mode of treatment is effectually rebuked; while the successful practice of the editor, Dr. ROBERT HUNTER, is amply proved by unanswerable facts, drawn out by a recent libelous and unprovoked assault.

Let every one interested in the subject read this number of the Specialist.

The Wreck of the Steamer Florida.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, Oct. 8, 1856.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—During the commencement of last month accounts were received, by way of New-Orleans, of the wreck of the steamship Florida between Pensacola and Apalachicola, and in the National Intelligencer of Monday last there is a thrilling description by a lady of her struggles for the safety of her children.

Now, it is my purpose to examine into the cause of this accident to the Florida, or rather the cause of the jeopardy of her passengers.

Some time ago a mercantile house at New-Orleans obtained a contract from Government to carry the mails from New-Orleans to Key West, via the ports of Florida. For this purpose they placed upon the route two old steamboats, called the Vanderbilt, or C. Vanderbilt, and the Florida. As each had a mast stuck in forward, and as the hulls of both were painted black, there was authority sufficient, it seems, according to the ideas of their owners, for denominating them steam-ships, and for so advertising them; whereas, steam-coffins would have been a more appropriate name. In this and other ways, these rattletraps secured the confidence of the traveling community, and many lives were risked in them. With no confidence, but with a willingness to take the chances, peculiarly American, I took passage last Winter, in the Vanderbilt, from New-Orleans to Pensacola, and you cannot imagine how delighted I was to get to my journey's end! These two vessels were, in fact, unseaworthy. Of the size of our small-est Staten Island ferry boats, they were painted and painted up in a manner to deceive persons not accustomed to travel by sea, and for that reason obtained a fair share of patronage. They were run, too, upon a most miserly system, and badly managed. Their machinery was constantly out of order, and they were surpassed in slowness by other part they entered.

I cannot believe that it was the intention of the owners of these vessels that the mail should be carried in such unseaworthy craft; but it is a subject of congratulation that any one of them has gone without the loss of life. I hope that the mail should be taken from the monopoly to the benefit of the people of New-Orleans.

FRIDAY, Oct. 10—P. M.

The pervading topic of the Street to-day is the Huntingdon forgeries, the first development of which appeared under the Police head of the morning papers. Besides the name of PHELPS, DODGE & Co., three other leading mercantile signatures are now believed to have been forged—BOWEN, MCNAMEE & Co., CLAFLIN, MELLEN & Co., and R. W. HOWES & Co. The total amount said to be afloat is over $400,000, though this may prove an exaggeration. Where the loss falls, or how distributed, is not known, and perhaps never will be. We only hear, thus far, of the hair-breadth escapes in dealing with the forger or his confederates. Most of the false signatures are said to be clumsily imitated, yet the paper passed current, at gilt edge rates, without suspicion, with some of our most astute money-lenders, because merchant-drawn instead of Railway paper, or because single-name individual, instead of Stock security. Such is one of the lessons resulting from bigotry in the employment of capital. All the hazards that attend mercantile paper are overlooked while it chances to be the favorite investment, and every other security turned upon with suspicion. The fashion of lenders once changed, the probability is their prejudices will run to the other extreme. To-day there is apparently an easier supply of Money to the Stock Brokers, and the Second Board closes with a somewhat improved demand for Stocks themselves. At two or three of the large Banks the applications for discounts were less than on Tuesday, their previous Board day. In other instances the offerings were excessive.

The business at the Stock Exchange was large in the Railroad shares. There was a further decline at the morning session of ⅛ to ⅜ ⅌ cent. as compared with Thursday, on Erie, Reading, New-York Central and Toledo, in all which the transactions were heavy, but this was recovered in the afternoon, and the last price of Erie on the Street was 61¼, Reading 81¼, and Toledo 76; the general market closing firm.

There was a good supply of Sterling for the Baltic to-morrow at 109¾@8⅝, and Francs at 5.17½@5.15. North of Europe Exchange rather difficult to be had. The mail will not be a very heavy one, owing to the non-receipt of the Niagara's letters in season for reply. The engagements of Specie are about $470,000 for this packet. The Sub-Treasury received to-day $161,099; paid $142,858 and held at the close a balance of $18,889,957. There was $50,000 received from the Mint at Philadelphia.

The comparative ease in the Money affairs of Boston, and the positive steadiness at cheap rates of the New-Orleans market, are the appropriate subject of remark in the present condition of the banking movement nearer home. The facts ought to inspire additional trust in the healthy state of business throughout the country. The producers of the great staple of Cotton in the Valley of the Mississippi and the manufacturers of Cotton Goods in Massachusetts are all well to do in their finances. The former have grown rich from the liberal prices of the past year or two, and their representatives merchants and bankers at New-Orleans stay and every way comfortable. There is a large accumulation of real capital at that point. The banking movement is regular and free from inflation. Discounts are readily and reasonably made. The market for Money was never known so cheap on long-date engagements as throughout the past season. The Specie reserve is large, and from general appearances will prove
